The 2022 syllabus has been reformatted and edited to include new guidelines.
Please read it carefully and reach out with any questions.

A message from the Committee:

First and foremost, we want to let all studios and dancers know that you are in our thoughts. We recognize that this global pandemic has profoundly impacted your families, your industry and your businesses. We believe the last 18 months has taught us lessons of resiliency, flexibility and it seems we are not through this just yet!

The Prince George Dance Festival continues to be committed to providing an adjudicated festival for performing artists in our region. The COVID-19 global pandemic continues to make planning for a festival challenging. The PGDF board has and will continue to make decisions with the safety of our participants, volunteers and community as our first priority, followed by our goal to provide an opportunity for young performing artists of the Prince George region to perform their dance pieces for adjudication.

This syllabus was written with the information that we have at the time of publication (October, 2021) but know that things may change between now and the actual festival dates. We commit to communicate the changes as swiftly we can and through multiple channels, including email, our website and Facebook. We are currently planning for an in-person festival. Everything we do will be subject to the public health orders in place at the time of our festival and therefore changes even to things outlined in this syllabus may be needed. Please review the COVID safety section on page 10 before registering. We will communicate with all participants if such changes occur.

We are incredibly grateful to Ming-Bo Lam, Alexandra Crenian and Dedra McDermott who inspired us to review our guidelines to ensure they are inclusive as well as to offer resources to our dancers. We hope you all take the time to review our guidelines and the resources provided within.

1. WELCOME!

WELCOME to the new and revised Prince George Dance Festival (PGDF) Syllabus!

We hope the updated formatting creates a more accessible document through which to navigate and we specifically draw your attention to the added notes regarding cultural awareness, diversity, inclusion, and anti-racism. Our hope is that this updated syllabus will serve as a starting point for continued research and education. We invite you to dive into the additional resources that we've included as part of the Appendix. When a performer understands the "who, what, where, and why" of their embodied artform, it establishes a deeper respect for the craft and expands their ability to showcase their best work. This pursuit of excellence is what the PGDF strives to foster within the community.

On behalf of the PGDF Committee and all who have contributed to this updated syllabus, we wish you the best at this year's festival and look forward to witnessing your performances!

2. RESPONSIBILITY AND ACCOUNTABILITY

The PGDF agrees and acknowledges to uphold the highest standards regarding inclusivity, diversity, and equity practices. The PGDF believes there is no single aesthetic that defines a dancer and welcomes participants of all shapes, sizes, ethnicities, gender expressions and identities, and sexual orientations. While the arts have long been a place of community, healing, and empowerment, they have also been places that prioritize a Eurocentric standard and exploit and appropriate historically excluded communities and cultures. The PGDF is proud to commit to increasing accessibility and inclusion for all dance artists who wish to participate in the festival.

The PGDF - including all board members and adjudicators, reserves the right to follow-up with dance educators, choreographers, dancers, and studios regarding questionable or inappropriate content that violates or goes against the rules and requirements outlined in this syllabus. The follow-up process may include conversations and dialogue between the PGDF and individual/group in question, and may result in disqualification. The PGDF requests that all participants thoroughly read through this syllabus, ask any and all questions that may arise, and do their very best to adhere to the requests made. It is only through our collaborative efforts that we can make the PGDF as safe a space as possible for all dancers and participants.

We thank you for your assistance in making this possible!

By participating in the PGDF, all dance educators, choreographers, dancers, and studios acknowledge and agree that they have read and understood the rules and requirements outlined in the PGDF syllabus. All participants acknowledge and agree to uphold the standards of conduct outlined in the PGDF syllabus and commit to cooperating accordingly with any requests of the PGDF regarding violations or conflicts with the syllabus.

Groups will be performed in-person, assuming all public health orders can be met in doing so. 2. All dancers in the En Pointe category must be 13 years or older
3. The age category is calculated by the AVERAGE AGE of dancers in the group number.
 - a. Dancecomp Genie will automatically calculate the group age, according to the following:
 - i. Add the age of each dancer in group together
 - ii. Divide by total number of dancers in group
 - iii. Total to one (1) decimal place
 1. Round up if the average age is 0.5 or above
 2. Round down if the average age is 0.4 or below

However, if the PGDF is unable to hold an in-person festival, the festival may be held virtually, if financially and logistically feasible. We encourage studios to plan for video submissions of all their entries.

Song & Dance Solos/Duos	Four (4) Minutes

Groups	Six (6) Minutes
Production	Eight (8) Minutes

8. MUSIC GUIDELINES:

A note on music selection: Each song choice sets the tone for the performance piece. It is integral that educators, choreographers and studio owners do their due diligence to understand the context of the music they've chosen for EACH piece. With the accessibility of information available, a simple Google search of a song's context and lyrics is strongly encouraged.

Examples:

1. "Bangkok" from Chess
 - a. This song contains racial slurs and a fetishization and dehumanization of a racialized group. It also describes racist, misogynistic, and adult themes.
 - b. This song both causes harm and perpetuates harm to a racialized group.
 - c. This song would not be an appropriate music choice.
2. "Strange Fruit" by Billie Holiday (and/or recent covers/remixes)
 - a. This song graphically describes racially targeted lynchings (violent murders) in the Southern States.
 - b. Using this song would require a strong connection and full understanding of the historical accuracies depicted in the lyrics. It would also require a Content Warning, as the lyrics are triggering and could cause harm to viewers.

Awareness is key to maintaining a safe environment. Choreographers must look at the lyrics/phrasing of each song, not limiting "appropriateness" to singular words. Many songs may not contain inappropriate or "bad" words, yet the subject matter and phrasing is highly inappropriate, insensitive or offensive in nature. This applies to ALL dance genres.

Note: For assistance determining if your music choices are appropriate, please see Appendix B on Page 31.

13. CATEGORY DESCRIPTIONS AND GUIDELINES

NOTE: Please see Appendix A (page 30) for a chart depicting which categories are eligible for provincials.

13.1. BALLET

Originating during the Italian renaissance of the 1500-1600s, ballet has become a notable form of concert dance that includes romantic, classical, neoclassical, and contemporary ballet. Ballet is an expressive form that merges classical ballet technique and orchestral style music, often in direct relation to folkloric storytelling. At the PGDF, there are four forms of ballet that qualify for competition: En Pointe, Classical Ballet, Demi-Character, and Contemporary Ballet.

When performing traditional or folkloric dances, be mindful of the historical and cultural stories that you are portraying. While there are many classical ballets that are still appropriate to reference today, any form of cultural appropriation will not be tolerated. When in doubt, remember that culture is not costume and there is a fine, and necessary, line between character portrayal and caricature. For young performers, performing traditional ballet variations and/or folkloric dances may present an opportunity to learn about a culture that is different from their origin story, so please, be diligent.

As an example, many of Marius Petipa's ballets display the cultures of racialized identities through the lens of demeaning caricatures. Think of the Chinese Tea dance from the Nutcracker or the infamous blackface incidents in La Bayadère. Performing variations of his choreography, among others, that continue to display outdated and disrespectful representations of people through movement, costuming, or otherwise (historical or fictionalized) is prohibited. See Appendix C for additional resources and articles.

We invite and encourage all dancers to choose tights and shoes in their skin tone, where appropriate, throughout the ballet category.

In addition, dancers will not be limited, nor judged, based on the traditional gender roles of classical ballet. Dancers are critiqued on presentation, performance, musicality, and technique.

13.1.1. En Pointe:

1. Classical ballet technique performed to classical orchestral music
 - a. Lyrics are not permitted in the En Pointe category
2. Footwear:
 - a. Pointe shoes

- i. Must be 13 years of age or older to compete in the En Pointe category

13.1.2. Classical Ballet:

1. Classical ballet technique performed to classical orchestral music
 - a. Lyrics are not permitted in the Classical Ballet category
2. Footwear:
 - a. Solos
 - i. Soft slipper for all ages
 - b. Duos and Groups
 - i. Soft slipper for ages 12 and under
 - ii. Soft slipper or pointe shoe for ages 13 years and over; duos where one dancer is in a soft shoe and the other en pointe should be registered in this category.

13.1.3. Demi-Character:

1. "Demi" refers to "half" - the upper body portrays a character and tells a story, the lower body employs classical ballet technique.
 - c. Lyrics are not permitted in the Demi-Character category
3. Footwear:
 - a. Soft slippers or pointe shoes must be worn
 - i. En Pointe must be 13 years of age or older

13.1.4. Contemporary Ballet:

1. This ballet form demonstrates a strong and clear understanding of classical ballet technique and execution, but prioritizes diverse dynamics of flow, musicality, and variations in timing; asymmetrical movement and lines; as well as releasing the port-de-bras of the upper body, therefore going against the more linear and placed positions of classical ballet performance. This style includes non-traditional ballet movements, such as floor work and parallel positions, etc., to portray a more free and earth bound performance.
 - b. Lyrics are permitted in the Contemporary Ballet category
4. Footwear:
 - a. Soft slippers or pointe shoes must be worn

- i. En Pointe must be 13 years of age or older

5. References:

- b. Aszure Barton for Ballet BC

13.2. MODERN/CONTEMPORARY

13.2.1. Modern:

1. Modern dance originated at the turn of the 20th century, as pioneers such as Isadora Duncan, Pearl Primus, and Ruth St. Denis rebelled against ballet and vaudeville. Today it is recognized as a stylized dance genre with foundations in a technically based discipline such as Graham, Limon, Cunningham, Humphrey, Horton, etc. Modern dance rejects the limitations of classical ballet, and was formulated from natural rhythms. It favours movement derived and connected to contraction and release, breath, suspension, fall and recovery, weightedness, and dynamism. Movement may or may not be related to the music.
2. Footwear:
 - a. Bare feet or socks
3. References:
 - a. Alvin Ailey American Dance Theatre
 - b. Toronto Dance Theatre
 - c. Martha Graham Dance Company

13.2.2. Contemporary:

1. Contemporary refers to “in the now”. While it is often used as an umbrella term, in this context Contemporary specifically refers to free movement dance encompassing various dance disciplines with modern and ballet technique as its underlying base. Examples include the choreography of William Forsythe, Wayne McGregor, Akram Khan, Ohad Narin (Gaga), Hofesch Shechter (Release Technique), etc. A constantly evolving style of movement that gives physicality to human ideologies and concepts with emphasis on engaging the whole body.

13.3. STAGE

It must be noted that engaging with these Dance Genres in any capacity requires the acknowledgement of the systems that contributed to their original development. This includes the systems that perpetuate further erasure and harm to the founders/creators of these dances. It is a privilege to have the ability to share space in this artform. With greater understanding of a dance comes a greater ability to perform it. Please consider these resources a starting point for further research and understanding. As historical themes are discussed below, please take your time and care, as describing the origins of these dances requires a discussion of historically oppressed and excluded peoples.

13.3.1. Commercialized Hip Hop:

1. This sub-category encompasses the style of performance that you see represented in most film and television including music videos, and - most recently - on TikTok. These choreographed routines are a mixture of techniques and understandings of multiple forms of street dance, performed to Hip Hop and Pop(ular) music (Including R&B, House, New Jack Swing, etc.) This is generally the primary style of dance seen in the “Hip Hop” category across dance festivals and competitions.

It should be noted that Hip Hop Dance is a social dance, known as “Party Dances”, that has its own foundations and is a freestyle artform. Hip Hop itself is a culture, with five elements, coined by Afrika Bambaataa in the Bronx, New York in 1977.

The Commercial Hip Hop category at the PGDF will serve as an umbrella term for the sake of this document, referring to multiple forms of Street Dance as a result of the commercialization of Hip Hop Dance. This can include Hip Hop and Breaking, but also many other street styles including Stepping and House or styles born through Queer Culture and communities, know as Ballroom styles: Voguing and Waacking. The Commercial Hip Hop category also includes Funk styles of dance, which predate Hip Hop: Locking, Waving, Animation, and Popping. Lastly, it encompasses Caribbean dance styles, such as Dancehall and Reggaeton.

It is essential to note that all of the styles in this genre are rooted in Black and Hispanic Culture. Each style has its own foundational base, specific to the style the dancer is performing. Each style of dance stems from the evolution of the music and the sociopolitical times. As the music changed, so did the dance, which explains why most of the dances are named after the music itself, ie: House Music and House Dancing. An understanding of where and when these dances began is advised to fully grasp the dance's concept, techniques, and musicality. This goes for educators, choreographers, and dancers alike.

2. Footwear:

a. Indoor sneakers or street boot styles (such as Timberland boots); jazz runners are not appropriate

3. This category may include gymnastics, tumbling, power moves, or any series of tricks or stunts.

13.3.2. Tap:

1. Tap has a deep rooted and complex American history stemming from pain and injustice. It was born in the American South from the effects of the vicious Transatlantic Slave Trade which forced approximately 10-12 million African people into enslavement. Human captors stole enslaved African people's cultural instruments, specifically percussion (drums), in an effort to erase their cultural heritage. What we now call TAP was born to replace the sounds of these stolen instruments and stolen celebrations, creating a new artistic expression that has evolved throughout generations and 300+ years.

Tap eventually became exclusionary to the originators and cultural owners of this dance style, as theatres, and eventually film and television, excluded the original creators based on race.

As tap evolved, it is said to have picked up other dance influences from travelling shows through the trade industry, such as Irish jigging and various North American Indigenous dances.

Broadway/Theatre Style Tap, like Broadway Jazz, is the style of Tap that was popularized in Theatres that were able to gain monetary success during segregation. Unfortunately, due to this racial gatekeeping (exclusion), many of the Original Creators of these dances' names are not known today. John W. Bubbles is known as the Father of Rhythm Tap, which is the style closest to what we see performed today in dance festivals.

For the purpose of this syllabus, the tap category is defined as rhythm through footwork, style and presentation. Adjudicators are looking for a well-rounded tap vocabulary and the ability to keep time and rhythm with music or during acapella sections. Any clapping or additional percussion, including those made with props or the body, must demonstrate a consistency and strong understanding of rhythm and musicality.

2. Footwear:

- a. Tap shoes

3. No dubbing of tap sounds permitted on recording.

13.3.3. Song & Dance:

1. A fantastic opportunity to bring the bright lights of Broadway to Prince George! Song & Dance routines should be suited to stage production, with a balanced effort in singing, dancing, and acting: a triple threat performance. The audience should feel transported, immersed, and engaged with the story being told. An emphasis on character development and portrayal is encouraged.
2. No recorded vocals permitted.
3. Routines should be approximately 50% song and 50% dance
4. For live performances, song and dance soloists may have access to a microphone, depending on the venue.

13.3.4. Theatrical (previously called variety)

1. Theatrical is an open category where choreographers are encouraged to take risks and embrace their creative potential. Ultimately, anything goes! You can mix and fuse dance styles and genres, play with the incorporation of theatre, or experiment with mixed mediums. We invite you to have fun in this category and inspire your fellow participants.
 - a. A note on comedy: please be mindful to ensure that any comedy employed is appropriate and “punches up” (teases, pokes fun at someone with greater power and privilege than you) VS. “punches down” (sets your target as someone with less power and/or privilege than you). Question who you/the audience are laughing at and why the joke is funny. If comedy includes hurt or harm, it does not belong in this space.

2. Must not be able to fit in any other category.
3. Lip Syncing is permitted.

13.3.5. Jazz:

1. Jazz Dance shares its deep roots in various African culture's rhythms and traditional dances, as well as the atrocities that enslaved African people experienced, previously outlined in the Tap section [Please See Page 23]. Yet another dance style originating from Black culture and an integral part of Black History. Jazz Dance came with the creation of Jazz Music, stemming from culturally diverse New Orleans around the 19th-20th centuries. Jazz music was created for people to dance to, originally as a social and freestyle artform. Jazz has gone through many evolutions through its widespread popularity for over a Century. As it became more accessible with the first recorded Jazz record in 1917, movies with sound in the 1930's, and the rise of television. The increasing popularity of dance crazes eventually lead to the Commercial Dance Industry- or simply put, professional, paid dancers. In the 1950's, Jack Cole blended Eurocentric dance styles (Ballet & Modern) with Vernacular Jazz Dance (Charleston, Jive, Jitterbug, the Black Bottom, Lindy Hop) and became known as the "Father of Theatrical Jazz." It must be said that many originators of Jazz dances are not known due to many factors that included exclusion based on race, sexual orientation, class and gender-identity. One of many examples is the well-known style of Bob Fosse, without the mention of Gwen Verdon within Theatrical Jazz. Each decade had its own additions to Jazz Dance and culture, reflective of the social and political times, outlined in the (a.) resource given below. This is the reason Jazz dance may be performed to many styles of music: Jazz, Disco, Pop, Rock, Blues, Swing, Latin, Electronic, etc. each with various sub-styles of the dance.
2. Performances in this category can be Vernacular Jazz (the original), Broadway or Theatrical Jazz (not "classical"), Latin Jazz, Afro-Cuban Jazz, Disco or Commercial Jazz (the most recent addition to the style.)
3. Footwear:
 - a. Jazz shoes, bare feet, heels (safe on marley); no ballet shoes permitted
4. Vocal and instrumental music arrangement permitted.

13.3.6. Lyrical:

1. Lyrical gained popularity throughout the 20th Century from popular films and increasingly popular dance competitions. Although it isn't exactly clear when this dance genre began, it is defined as a mixture of ballet and soft-Jazz vocabulary, focusing on songs with emotive lyrics. The key word here is: LYRICS - the words of the song that tell us a story. Storytelling should be portrayed through movements that sync with the lyrics and tone of the song. This can be described as the highs and lows of the song lyrics that follow the emotional journey of the singer, as performed by the dancer's movements. As with any story, a clear beginning, middle, and end should be portrayed by the performer.
2. Facial expressions and movement directly represent the lyrics.
3. Music must have lyrics.
4. Footwear:
 - a. Jazz shoes, socks, or bare feet

13.4. Open

13.4.1. Culturally Specific:

1. The Culturally Specific category is designed to feature and focus on dances which connect to a culture's history and livelihood, complete with appropriate costumes and music. Examples include, but are not limited to, Spanish Flamenco, Polynesian Hula, Russian Folk Dancing, Scottish Highland Dancing, Brazilian Samba, Chinese Lion Dancing, Cuban Salsa, Sinte from West Africa, etc. Remember that not all dances specific or related to one's culture are meant to be performed. Dance is a powerful, universal language that is often used to process collective grief, remember history, or as part of a ritual or celebration. We look forward to celebrating the diversity of Culturally Specific dances and learning together about the different ways we express ourselves through music and movement.
 - a. Note: By entering a number in this category, you acknowledge that you have done your due diligence to honour the culture with which you are engaging and that you are, or have employed, an expert representative to ensure cultural accuracy and respect.
2. Footwear:
 - a. Must be appropriate and specific to the cultural dance being performed.

13.4.2. Acrobatic Dance:

1. The performer's safety is of the utmost importance in all categories, but especially in Acrobatic Dance, which requires an equal combination of strength and flexibility. This prevents injury and sets the performer up for success in their Acrobatic Dance performance. Acro is a newer term for a mixture of dance, contortion, and certain gymnastic elements that can include partnering and hand balances. The contortion and partnering elements themselves originate in both traditional Chinese and Mongolian performances, dating back thousands of years. The evolution of what Acro has become today was popularized through travelling performances and what was later considered to be Circus. It is vital that the performance showcases a display of strength and capability to perform any of the tricks, twists, balances, or explosive gymnastic elements.

The performer(s) must present musicality, timing, control, strength, and flexibility with a focus on smooth transitions from one skill to the next. If partnering is involved, a strong understanding and importance of trust and connection between the base person(s) and liftee(s)/flyer(s).

2. Must be suitable for stage presentation.
 - a. No mat to be used, the performer must be comfortable exercising all moves on the stage flooring.
 - b. Routine must contain 50% dance and 50% acrobatic elements.
3. Please be mindful of costumes in this category. Ensure costumes are conducive to the extreme movement and long-held poses facing the audience. Comfort, coverage, and stretch of fabric is key.
4. For educators and dancer reference, there are acro certifications available to help facilitate the performer's safety. Linked is a popular certification course, but is not limited to this specific organization. PGDF is not affiliated with this certification and is to be used as reference only.

5. Footwear:
 - a. Bare feet, jazz shoes, or any version of a half-shoe (Foot Undiez, Foot Paws, etc.)

13.4.3. Junior Choreography:

optional.

2. This category is not counted in solo and duo limits or in double-ups.
3. The piece may also be entered in its respective category, i.e. Solo Contemporary
4. Adjudication will be based on both the choreographer's notes and choreography. Both adjudicators will watch and critique all entries in this category. A reminder that all art is subjective and the adjudicators will use their own expertise to critique and place each performance.
5. When critiquing Junior Choreography, the adjudicators will likely consider the following elements:
 - a. Staging: Use of the stage, regardless of number of dancers (solo or group) is imperative to a successful dance piece
 - b. Transitions: Not only group formations, but also how each move transitions from one to the next
 - c. Musicality: Does the choreography match the music as the music grows and evolves throughout the piece- and is it an appropriate choice for the dancer(s)
 - d. Storytelling: Does each piece have a beginning, middle and end, does it capture the audience with an emotional connection, does the piece have a clear intention
 - e. Creativity: How is this piece unique and specific to you and/or your dancers- has the junior choreographer put in "filler" moves to take up time and space or is each part carefully curated to the song with intention?
 - f. Costuming and Presentation: do all elements included in your piece add to the performance value
 - g. Technique: Does the choreography showcase technical/foundational elements in the dance genre of which the dancer(s) are performing

2. Think of theatre productions as a 3D experience. Therefore, the video production category is a 2D experience. To provide a fully immersive experience for the audience, the creators must be able to find ways to express their piece through various camera angles, camera movement, multiple scenes, use of lighting, and wardrobe/costuming. Be creative! Be mindful that any edits must enable the audience to clearly see choreography and stay within the time limit.
